

Hello Hello Hello

This week Geraldine the Giraffe and I have been helping Bláithín write cards home to everyone in our class to say goodbye until September. I guess everyone is going to be really tall when we go back to school. Oh I can't wait to see all of you again!! Bláithín shows me pictures that your Mammies and Daddies send in each week of you all in your homes. It's pretty cool to see what everyone else is getting up to. Anyways, I got a little sad when helping write some of the cards. I realised how much I've missed you all. Geraldine gave me a hug and it made me feel a lot better. We took a trip to our local post office and posted the cards to you, so hopefully you will get them really soon.

Anyways, I won't be writing my diary again until September and we're back to school. Bláithín says we're going to go on a little holiday somewhere in Ireland this year and I'll take lots of pictures to show you all when I am back. I really am going to miss you lots, and I already do. I asked Bláithín to promise to show me the class photos every couple of days, just so I can see your faces somewhere. I made 26 new friends this year, I am so lucky. I love you all very much.

Have a really good Summer.

Lots of love,
Jeremy
(and Geraldine the Giraffe).
